

Think More, Think Better, Think Differently.

Recipe for success in one 130-character Tweet:

Tap the ultimate business resource. Develop more creative, logical, critical, productive, expansive and results-oriented thinkers.

Thinking ability can be taught, learned and practiced to proficiency. Thinking more, thinking better and thinking differently confers tremendous enterprise advantage.

Thinking skills benefit the enterprise but belong to the individual. That realization sets up exceptional win/win learning & development opportunities — i.e. investments that enrich employees, while adding turbo boost to organizational capability.

Lateral Thinking disciplines use proven techniques to escape established patterns in order to find novel combinations of existing information that exhibit logic in hindsight, and therefore have value and may lead to breakthroughs.

Design Thinking envisions desirable possibilities and seeks, through iterative and collaborative ‘engineering’ to make them both feasible and viable.

Parallel thinking disciplines facilitate shorter, more productive more congenial meetings, as participants confine their thinking to one purposeful ‘mode’ at a time.
